Eyraud Will Pay the Penalty of His Crime.

BOMPARD GETS TWENTY YEARS.

Closing Day of the Sensational Murder Trial in Paris—The Doctrine of Hypnotism Does Not Make Much Impression, but Astounding Circumstances in the Woman's Case Are Found—Other Cable News.

PARIS, Dec. 21.—The trial of Michel Eyraud and Gabrielle Bompard for the murder of Notary Gouffe, which has attracted the attention of the whole world in the assassination and Panama Canal scandals, has at last come to its close, and the verdict of the jurors was the longest since the trial began. The physical and mental strain imposed by the trial is so enormous that the prisoners, as well as the principal witnesses, showed evidences of it in the court room in which the crime was committed. Michel Bompard was especially nervous and excited.

The proceedings were opened by the public prosecutor, who summed up the case on behalf of the government. He began by pointing to the damning proof of the murder and to the guilt of M. Gouffe. He begged the jury to follow him closely, and to dismiss from their minds all the evidence that had been presented relating to hypnotism. He said he would endeavor to sift the truth, and to uphold justice against theories of suggestion, which, he declared, constituted a menace to society.

He denounced the theories of the Nancy school of hypnotists, and citing the results of Professor Liegeois experiments in support of his contention, urged that a person who was hypnotized retained sufficient will power to resist the operator's will. He said that Professor Liegeois experiments showed that no operator could bring a subject so absolutely under his control as to force him or her to commit a crime. The theories of the Nancy school were nothing less than the old story of the "evil eye," and were on a par with fortune telling with cards. If such theories were once admitted personal responsibility would be at an end, and the laws on which society depended for protection would disappear at once.

Secretary Mibe Bompard, the prosecutor said that the woman's mother was not weak, but it was diseased. Both prisoners were equally guilty. The evidence showed that everything in the room in which the crime was committed had been prepared for the hanging of Gouffe, and it was folly to assert the contrary. The notary would have been quite unable to do what had been taken unaware. It was the jury's duty to reject the story of the woman, who was incapable of her responsibility, and who had confessed her guilt.

It was the woman's cruelty that strung on the cord and forced it into the hand of her lover, who waited for a favorable moment to strangle the victim with which Gouffe was provided. He demanded that the existence of two of the lowest of mankind upon earth should be ended. He did not ask for the death penalty in the case of Mlle. Bompard, but the jury must consider her as a woman of refined education and her condition of life, and decide whether there were not some extenuating circumstance in the part she had taken in the crime.

When the public prosecutor had concluded, M. Lenoel arose to address the court in behalf of Eyraud. M. Lenoel admitted that his task was a difficult one. The horror, he said, aroused about the strike no longer existed, but to avoid the triumph of the assassin, who had secured their prey, the claims of crowd upon crowd of their victims were ignored, but he hoped that the jury would not allow their prejudices to be influenced by this cause. Eyraud, he continued, had been a bad man from the time he had become a bankrupt and a lawbreaker. He had committed a forgery to help his friend Gouffe in the matter of the latter's divorce suit. Mlle. Bompard had made him promise on her honor to show the character of the papers connected with the forgery before he used them, but the letter which Mlle. Bompard wrote to falsify her first letter, stating that the papers had not been shown to her, proved that Eyraud had not respected her confidence.

M. Lenoel, proceeding, contended that Bompard and not Eyraud received the money for which they were now being tried. The evidence of Mme. Gouffe, who was not to be considered, as she was under the influence of Mlle. Bompard, was to the effect that Eyraud had given her money from him. This fact brought Bompard to the gravest crime.

M. Robert then addressed the court in behalf of Mlle. Bompard. He contended that Eyraud had exercised over the latter such an influence that she was unable to resist his commands. Her confession, he said, was the result of her weakness, and not of her guilt. She had been the victim of Eyraud's cruelty, and had been driven to the crime by fear of him. She had been the instrument in his hands, and not the principal in the crime.

The prisoners were then asked if they had anything to say in their defense. Eyraud replied in the negative. Mlle. Bompard, however, made a long statement. She declared that she had been driven to the crime by fear of Eyraud, who had threatened to kill her if she refused to obey him. She had been the victim of his cruelty, and had been driven to the crime by fear of him. She had been the instrument in his hands, and not the principal in the crime.

The jury then retired to consider their verdict. After an absence of three quarters of an hour they returned and announced the result of their deliberations. The verdict was that Eyraud was guilty of the murder of Gouffe, and that Bompard was guilty of complicity in the crime, but that extenuating circumstances were found in favor of the latter. No recommendation to mercy was made in the case of Eyraud.

The verdict was received in perfect silence by the crowd in the court room. Eyraud showed not the slightest signs of emotion.

When sentence had been pronounced upon Eyraud he asserted that he had been driven to the crime by fear of Gouffe, and that Bompard was innocent. Bompard, on the other hand, declared that she was guilty, and that Eyraud was innocent.

Eyraud was then taken back to his cell. He refused food, and showed not the slightest signs of emotion.

When Eyraud was informed that his appeal for mercy had been rejected

The city of Cleveland has a Goose Creek and is wanting a public appropriation to improve it. Now here is a suggestion for Marion. Let us have Uncle Sam give us an appropriation for Goose Creek. It is a navigable stream a good part of the time.

The little things are what accomplish the great results in this world. A Chinaman repairing the roof of a powder mill lighted his pipe a little carelessly and the news comes that 500 coffins were not equal to the demand for burial. Our prediction is that a cow kicked over a lantern and thus started the conflagration of Chicago.

Jerry at Delaware the Italian, Paletto, who shot Martin Heenan, has been left to go free, while Heenan is a wrecked man. The court held that Paletto had no malice and that he could not be convicted. Here is a pointer. If you want to shoot a man down, do it without malice, and you can go free, while your victim's grave is forgotten. Justice has a pretty hard row to hoe in this country.

WILL STAND TRIAL FOR HERESY.

Rev. Howard Macqueary Refuses to Withdraw His Heretical Statements.

CANTON, O., Dec. 22.—Rev. Howard Macqueary, the Episcopalian charged with heresy, says that all overtures for amicable settlement of the trouble have failed and that the trial will be held in Cleveland, Jan. 7. He will conduct his own defence, assisted by a Cleveland attorney and one or two eminent Episcopal clergymen. He believes his position to be consistent and is determined that, regardless of results, he will not surrender his conscientious convictions.

So great has been the clamor against him, he says, that he can not foretell the results of the trial, but expects the worst, while he hopes for the best. He has made efforts to settle the trouble, but as he was asked to withdraw certain statements, he decided to stand trial, and is preparing his defense, which will be that he has not been inconsistent with his ordination vows.

The second edition of his work, "Evolution and Christianity," which led to the charge of heresy, is ready for the printers, and he reiterates his views on the incarnation of Christ and resurrection.

The New Discovery.

You have heard your friends and neighbors talking about it. You may yourself be one of the many who know from personal experience just how good a thing it is. If you have ever tried it, you are one of its staunch friends, because the wonderful thing about it is, that when once given a trial, Dr. King's New Discovery ever after holds a place in the house. If you have never used it and should be afflicted with a cough, cold or any throat, lung or chest trouble, secure a bottle at once and give it a fair trial. It is guaranteed to give relief or money is refunded. Trial bottles free at Foecken's drug store.

WHAT SALT WILL

[illegible] a watch-case [illegible] will [illegible] particularly for a time, [illegible] hot from baking out.

A teaspoonful of salt dissolved in one [illegible] cold water is extremely healing to sore sick feet [illegible].

To cure heartburn drink a half tumbler of cold water in which has been dissolved a heaping teaspoonful of salt.

When wiping up the floor before putting the carpet down, sprinkle it over with salt. Moths, bugs, this will greatly prevent them.

For stings or bites from any kind of insect apply dampened salt, bound tightly over the spot. It will relieve, and usually cure very quickly.

Salt as a tooth powder is better than almost any other dentifrice. It keeps the teeth very white, the gums hard and rosy, and the breath fresh.

If the feet are very sore, wring a cloth out of cold salt and water, and bind it on the feet [illegible] when going to bed; cover it with a dry towel. This is excellent.

For neuralgia make a small muslin bag, fill with salt, heat it very hot, and lay it against the aching place. It will prove a great relief, as salt retains the heat a long time.

For troublesome weeds and for grass in sidewalks, driveways, etc., apply a dressing of coarse salt, this will kill the growth. Be careful not to put it on anything that should not be destroyed, however.

For catarrh snuff up considerable salt and water from the hollow of the hand every morning. Salt and water, used as a gargle just before going to bed, strengthens the throat and helps to prevent bronchial troubles; it is also excellent for sore throat.

If ink is spilled on the carpet throw a quantity of salt on it, which will quickly absorb the ink; take this up and put on more salt. Keep repeating this, rubbing it well into the ink spot until the ink is all taken up by the salt, then brush the salt out of the carpet.

If anything catches fire or something burning makes a disagreeable smell or smoke throw salt upon it at once. If a bright, clear fire is quickly desired it may readily be obtained by throwing salt upon the coals; likewise, if too much blaze should result from dripping of fat from broiling steak, ham, etc., salt will subdue it.—Good Housekeeping.

ARMY AND NAVY NOTES.

Germany boasts the healthiest army in Europe. Belgium is second best and England comes in third.

The working of the mortar on the new cast steel carriage at Sandy Hook has been found very satisfactory.

A recent paper by Lieut. Fullman has raised a lively controversy in naval circles over the question as to whether it is better to retain the marines or to abolish them.

The imperial German marine staff for 1891-92 will require the enlistment of 400 men annually against 300 as heretofore. The usual yearly increase of fifteen officers will be omitted.

The cruiser Atlanta has recently been placed in dry dock at the Norfolk navy yard. The vessel has need of only minor repairs. She could be sent to sea on a few days' notice.

From a comparison of the registers of measurements made for army purposes it appears that American soldiers are, on the whole, as well developed as those who fill the ranks of European armies.

It has been proposed to make the upper half of war balloons of very thin steel and the lower portion of ordinary balloon material, the whole so constructed as to hold hydrogen instead of ordinary gas.

The English army is to have a new ball cartridge for the magazine rifle. It has been found that the lead core of the old pattern bullet has been often driven through the envelope in which it was incased.

The German army is so badly provided with officers that Kaiser Wilhelm has issued an ordinance by which the number will be increased during the next few years, and the term of instruction in the military academies will be shortened.

The work on the armored cruiser Texas is progressing favorably. It is estimated that three-quarters of the outside plating is on. Many of the frames above the protective deck are up, while not a few of the iron deck beams are in position.

Dr. Holder, the eminent authority on small arms, says that the concentric tube which encases the firing barrel of the Mannlicher rifle is the cause of increased temperatures, and by no means answers the purpose for which it was intended, namely, the [illegible] of the soldier from being burned.

Leg Badly Broken

Grant Holmes, foreman of the erecting department of the Steam Shovel Co's works, met with a serious accident this morning about twenty minutes after he began work that resulted in the fracture of his leg. He was engaged in moving a heavy piece of casting with a crowbar, when his hold slipped and he was thrown backwards with his leg across a piece of timber, while his foot was pinioned beneath the casting.

The man was taken to his home on north Main street and Drs. Rhu and Sweney were called and reduced the fracture, which was a compound one, and one bone protruded through the flesh.

Caledonia.

Weather fine, roads good, and a general good time anticipated the coming holidays.

Our news sack had a hole in it this week and so we lost considerable news.

Wash Ault and Miss Ida Wilson are visiting friends and relatives in Guernsey county.

James Weber has had a serious backset in his sickness and it is extremely doubtful if he will recover.

R. Geyer's son, Cooper, is very low with malaria fever at present.

John Rice is improving quite rapidly. His leg was badly fractured by a tree falling upon him.

Charles Henry, the boy who shot himself some time ago, will probably recover.

Burglars tried to gain an entrance into Deuce Bros.' drug store Tuesday night, but were frightened away

Isaac Mason had a colt fall into a well last week. He had considerable difficulty in getting it out, but at last reports the colt is all right

Last Thursday night we witnessed a sight which we will remember a long time. About half past eight or nine o'clock, a large meteor seemed to burst over the town, in bursting it threw out all colors, and it was so light for a few seconds that you could see to read anywhere on the streets. It was witnessed by quite a good many persons.

The ladies of the Universalist church will give an oyster supper Saturday evening in the Waltmus block. All are invited to attend.

Christmas and New Year most heartily or usual festivities; whether we are in shape or not to have them, God will pay the bill, but still it is right to gladden the hearts of those we love.

With these few items we close, wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

SITTING BULL'S LEVEE.

A Report Sent to the Indian Bureau By Its Agent Creates a Sensation.

Washington, Dec. 23.—Special Agent George L. Wilkinson of the Standing Rock agency, North Dakota, has made a report to the Indian bureau giving a detailed account of the killing of Sitting Bull and the circumstances connected with it. Mr. Wilkinson's report will create a sensation when it is made public, as it charges that Sitting Bull was killed by Indian police under the direction of Agent McLaughlin, and that the latter was not justified in giving the order for the arrest of Sitting Bull. Senator Butler, of South Dakota, had left Washington before the report was received, but Senator Pettigrew, who is also from South Dakota, said that he would not hesitate one moment to charge that the killing of Sitting Bull was unjustifiable, and that if by so doing he could accomplish the removal of McLaughlin he would consider it a good thing. Gen. Morgan, chief of the Indian bureau, declines emphatically to say what action will be taken in the matter, but it is understood that the report will be submitted to the secretary of the interior at once, and if by so doing he can accomplish the removal of McLaughlin he will undoubtedly do so.

Senator Butler, of North Carolina, is in favor of the proposition. He says that the whites are numerically the strongest in the state, and that the negroes are practically without any voice in the government. He thinks that the federal election bill was a step in the right direction, and that it would be a large class of citizens who are deprived of the right to vote. They would then become an element in politics as well as social affairs. The whites would have to look after their interests, and the negroes would be compelled to take an active part in politics. Senator Butler thinks that the federal election bill will be passed by the present session of congress. He says that the democrats would not dare to filibuster against it, for such a course would be unpopular throughout the country. He declares that the democrats would rejoice if the bill should become a law, as they would then be able to control the negro vote.

Senator Gorman declares emphatically that the democrats will not hesitate one moment to filibuster against the bill. He says that they are willing to do anything to prevent the passage of the measure, even if by so doing they should be compelled to remain in session during the entire holidays. HUMANITY is now enjoying the pleasures of anticipation; a pleasure, by the way, that is more than people generally credit. Anticipation is the source of happiness in this world.

THE Urbana Citizen issues a twelve-page Christmas edition, printed in blue upon fine book paper, that is a credit to the publishers. The chief beauty of the Citizen, however, is its well edited columns.

THE Christmas edition of the Bucyrus Telegraph downs all the Christmas numbers of the press of this section. It is composed of 20 pages, full of special matter and artistically printed, the whole enclosed in a handsome cover. The liberal showing of advertising must be as gratifying to the hustling business management as the elegant edition is to the editors. Bucyrus has a bang up paper in the Telegraph.

THE possible sale of the Huber works to the American Thresher Co., the proposed trust, is one of the all absorbing local topics. This is quite natural, for the Huber works stand first as a Marion institution, the great leader of all our industries. The directors have named a good, round price and the deal may be consummated, though there is no certainty. There is the question how it will affect things here. If the bringing of $700,000 cash to Marion will have serious affect we should be willing to risk it, for the splendid Huber plant will never become deserted as long the local enterprise that is now engaged there can find remunerative channels of enterprise to further build up the city. The whole thing is only a matter of speculation as yet, however. In any event we have the splendid works and, better still, the men who brought it about are Marion citizens, who may continue to do well for themselves and Marion.

Didn't Know It Revolved.

Mrs. Heyseide—Isay, Joshua, what's the light off that?

Former Heyseide—That's the Boston light, Marie.

Mrs. Heyseide—Wal, wal! Them sailors must be pritty patient. I'd 'a' sot it out more'n twenty years, and they kep' a-lightin' her up.—Journal of Education.

Letting Him Off Easy.

Prisoner—I am an old man, your honor—83 on my last birthday. Be lenient with me, sir.

The Judge—I will. Being 83 years old you have not long to live. I therefore make your term as light as I can. Instead of ten years you go up for life.—Puck.

An Incompetent Valet.

"That suit doesn't fit you very well, Chollie."

"I know it," returned Chollie, "but I cahn't help it. I sent my valet to be measured for me, and the beastly fellah's longer than I. I must weally get another man."—New York Evening Sun.

Made Light of It.

"I am afraid this poem may be a little heavy," said the timid bard, handing in an epic on "The Fall of Man."

"Well, we will try to make it light," replied the joke and obituary editor, touching it first to the gas jet and then to his pipe.—Boston Courier.

An honest Swede tells his story in plain but unmistakable language for the benefit of the public. One of my children took a severe cold and got the croup. I gave her a teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and in five minutes later I gave her one more. By this time she had to cough up the gathering in her throat. Then she went to sleep and slept good for fifteen minutes. Then she got up and vomited; then she went back to bed and slept good for the remainder of the night. She got the croup the second night and I gave the same remedy with the same good results. I write this because I thought there might be some one in the same need and not knowing the true merits of this wonderful medicine, CHARLES A. "Did he express himself?"

"No; he walked."—New York Herald.

The Horse and Farmer says: "The trio that have broken Palo Alto's record Nelson, Sunol and Axtell are strictly [illegible] breed. Breeders cannot afford to overlook the facts."

A most striking case of falling off in the value of a horse is that of the noted pacer Arrow, purchased a short time since by Mr. Shultz for $15,000. At the latter's sale Arrow went for $75.

The Maud S. of the European trotting turf, Besque Bonita, was sold to her present owner by John E. Madden, of Lexington, who discovered her good qualities the first time he saw her trot, and then bought her, realizing a handsome profit when he sold her to go abroad.

This year the 4-year-olds have come to the front with irresistible brilliancy, and have vindicated their character as to speed equally of the highest class. Sunol 2:08¾, Maud S. 2:08¾, Nancy Hanks 2:04¼, Alix 2:07¾, and Allerton 2:07¾, are the fastest of the 4-year-olds.

The Horseman advocates the early handling of colts. "The colt will learn more easily when 6 months old than when 1 year old. It's early training should not stop with breaking to halter. It should be handled until any part of it's body or limbs can be rubbed; until it is accustomed to the bridle and will drive as well as lead."

The Elizabeth meeting was a very successful one. For the period of two weeks the profit to the New Jersey Jockey club was about $30,000, and for one of the two meetings of 1890 the stockholders will doubtless, if not quite, $150,000, over and above all expenses. This nearly pays for the actual cost of the whole property.

A turf writer with a vivid imagination says the Shah of Persia has started a race course at Teheran. His majesty is [illegible] master steward, keeper of the [illegible] clerk of the course and scales, [illegible] handicapper. Whenever he has [illegible] he places two guards with drawn [illegible] beside the bookmaker. The shah [illegible] less than 30 to 1 about any [illegible] and the layer invariably pays out. [illegible] knows."

BUTTONS FOR 1891.

Pearl button manufacturers have also [illegible] out many novelties.

A 24 ligne black wood button has in relief a four-leaved clover of jet.

Enameled buttons with gold border show a peacock on a blue ground.

A brown leather button has a border of steel points and a white pressed feather knit.

Passementerie buttons are made of thick cords of cordonnet, covered with gold threads.

A novelty is buffalo horn made into buttons, with steel ornaments and steel point borders.

A gold button has a border of green metal leaves, the gold ground being covered with colored flowers.

A pearl button, black, is surrounded by steel points and has a steel star in the center. Steel is considered very fashionable.

Another button has two cordonnet stripes which form a cross in the center; in the corners are small designs in silk thread or coil.

A white mother of pearl button, with gold engraved ground, has flowers in relief and leaves in the dark, natural colored mother of pearl.

A natural mother of pearl button, gold engraved, is in the form of a shell. Another mother of pearl button is adorned with metal flowers.

Small pearl dress buttons are made of bone nuts or buffalo horn, also half balls, four hole buttons, with or without border, plain or in various colors.

Quite new are mother of pearl buttons with gold trimming and blue stone ornaments the stones being imitations of turquoises. These are also seen in oval form.

Another button has a central design in [illegible] around which small cordonnet [illegible] a star reaching to the border, [illegible] they are gathered in a thin cable cord.

A new button has a border of thick cord, [illegible] the center a small leaf design covered with gold thread from which thick [illegible] and thread run in star rays to the border.

Novelties in metal and fancy buttons [illegible] Parisian fashions. A yellow metal button [illegible] of a palette surrounded by steel points, the metal palette being in several [illegible] colors. Dry Goods Economist.

The Highest Scientific Station in Europe Erected at a Point Near the Summit of Mont Blanc at an Elevation of 13,300 Feet Above the Sea.

The wind was estimated to blow at the rate of over 200 miles an hour. The barometer varied a quarter of an inch within two minutes, and everything in the camp outside was blown completely off the mountain and carried to great distances. Thanks are due to The Popular Science News for the foregoing description of this station.

The Progress of Electric Lighting.

Sir Frederick Abel, president of the British association, in a recent address said that nine companies were now or would soon be at work supplying from central stations districts of London comprising almost the entire western and northwestern portions of the metropolis. In other parts of England there were already twenty-seven lighting stations actually at work in different towns. English recent progress, however, was insignificant as compared with the strides made in the application of electric lighting in the United States. While in August last the number of arc lamps in use in America was 130,000, and of glow lamps about one million, the number of the former and one hundred and fifty thousand of the latter met in operation in Europe. The United States, however, as a whole, has not taken to the application of electricity to the purposes of lighting so much as to passenger lifts and traction. With reference to the progress of telephonic communication he point [illegible] that the number of instruments [illegible] throughout the world was estimated as considerably exceeding a million.

At Music Hall Tonight

James Reilly, the new German comedian as "Yohann," the broom-maker, gave a most creditable performance at the Philips opera house last night, and will repeat the same tonight. As a vocalist and delineator of Dutch and Irish character Reilly has no equal on the stage. In voice, action and dress he is without fault. The company comprises actors, whose special parts are truthfully portrayed by competent artists. The play itself is simple and interesting and is invested with a vigorous dramatic plot, interspersed with innumerable songs and dances, laughable situations and surprising climaxes. Reilly can be favorably compared with the best of our modern comedians, such as Scanlon, Gardner or Ellis, while as a vocalist he excels. All the members of this excellent company are unusually clever in their various rolls. Miss Ethel Tucker, as the injured wife; Turnbull as the Irish friend in need; Spangler and Branick, as the conspirators; Maggie Leland, as the erratic but good old Dutch woman, and as "Widow McFay," deserve special mention, while May Templeton, as "Gretchen," Yohann's sweetheart, became a favorite, and by her clever acting and singing pleased immensely. What shall we say of these dear little tots, Robbie and Ella? Whenever they appeared before the footlights the audience was delighted. They are the smallest children that ever appeared in this city, and their songs and liliputian acting called forth words of praise and admiration from the lips of every individual present.

A Logical Conclusion.

Uncle Jake—I stick on to it, cunnel, 'at dere's nothin' 'at hasn't a reason fer it ef you'll only steddy it out. Fact is, 'at nigh on to any question kin be answered afo' it's axed, perwidin' you sat yo' mine on to it.

Col. Ipton—Uncle Jacob, I'll test that right off. Now why is that bell ringing?

Uncle J. (after a moment's deep thought)—Well, sah, ef my intellec-tuals ain't adrift on de ocean of onbelief, an' seein' as it are not dinnah time by a hounah yit, it's 'cause some fool is ashakin' of de handle of it.—Lowell Citizen.

FRASH.

HERE AND THERE

Dear, affectionate reader, did you ever imagine you would like to be mayor of your town? Yes, it is pleasant to be referred to as "His Honor," and all that sort of thing; in fact it is full of honor. Some day, when you are tired of crowding along in the old rut of ordinary citizenship, and think you would like to have your name go down to posterity on the municipal records, just take an hour off and loiter around the threshold of the police court and breathe the big chunks of honor-laden atmosphere as it steals out to mingle with the common four-winds. There's a case on the docket. If you were mayor you would pick up the slate and read: No. 2—common drunk—no money." If you were mayor you would sit upon that drunk, figuratively. It was his first offense; he was never there before, and as he contemplates the proverbial "five and costs," with no ready cash, hot, briny tears begin to percolate through his lashes, then drop down and lave those swollen cheeks and finally descend to that once all-lustrious shirt front that has unluckily missed a month of washdays. If you were mayor you would make a note of those tears and possibly wonder if that common drunk had not one day been somebody's darling, just like yourself when a boy—when you ran away from Sunday school to steal apples. And ten chances to one, between your sense of stern justice and sympathy, you would wish somebody else was mayor. But all the honor is not in the police court. Of course you will have to wear a boquet and make a speech on public occasions, that's pretty enough, but when a book agent comes around with the latest publication he will insist on having your subscription, and you must take the book at "twist" rids the actual cost, just for the honor of your name will have in subscribing for or subscribe, you know." We don't contract to mention all the honorable positions in which you will be placed when you are mayor, we have not remarked the two dozen men, women and children who will call on you every day in the week except Sundays, with a grievance. We don't want to discourage anyone who is courting a sweet dream in regard to the mayoralty, while waiting for the spring election, and we have said nothing about it at all if we had it to say about this much space would be taken up.

It is with considerable pleasure, we note that Delaware has struck something. A couple citizens of that place have struck what is thought to be a valuable and almost inexhaustible salt bank near the C. H. V. and T. railroad tracks. The town's in luck, overall and has found just what it needed. Marion should now bury her animosities and unite with her elder sister immediately.
